Paramount President Talks to Aviation Week about Pilot Opportunities in Asia-Pacific

- Michael Johnson recently spoke with Aviation Week & Space Technology editor, John Croft about the opportunities for expatriate pilots at Asia-Pacific airlines.
- In the article, Michael Johnson notes the high demand for pilots in South Korea, Japan, Vietnam, India and especially China.
- He discusses the contract terms and Paramount's screening process.
- Michael also states that, in the next 5-10 years the demand for ex-pats can only increase. "It's not feasible for airlines to fill all those seats," he says.

Paramount Pens Article on Choosing a Flight Support Company in Business Air magazine

- Paramount recently contributed an article, Bringing Your New Plane Home: Using Flight Support, to the January issue of Business Air.
- In the article, Michael Johnson discusses the options new aircraft owners have when bringing their new aircraft home: flying your own aircraft with flight support or ferrying your aircraft.
- He highlights the key elements that differentiate flight support providers.
  - Network and expertise
  - Flexibility
- Michael also reminds aircraft owners to always ask for a trip cost estimate to make sure they have a clear, detailed understanding of which services are provided and included.
